

GDPR Statement for Website

INTRODUCTION

In line with the European General Data Protection Regulations, please find here EPIC's GDPR statement which defines clearly who EPIC is and how it uses and protects any information provided when using this website or contacting EPIC by other means. EPIC is committed to ensuring that personal data remains private and protected, and that it provides transparency concerning how it processes any personal information. Should EPIC request certain information by which an individual can be identified, we confirm that it will only be used for the purposes explicitly stated.

WHO IS EPIC

EPIC's full legal name is the European Photonics Industry Consortium. Its registered office is 17 rue Hamelin, Paris 75016, France.

WHAT EPIC COLLECTS

EPIC collects personal data which includes the names, email addresses and photos of individuals taken from events at which EPIC is present. These are collected from submissions via email, the 'subscribe to our newsletter', or 'join our mailing list' buttons on the website, via membership application, or by registering for an event on EPIC's website.

WHAT EPIC DOES WITH THE INFORMATION GATHERED

EPIC collects data for the purpose of delivering services and information to you that you have requested and to correspond with you about its activities and events. EPIC will never pass any information to any party outside of EPIC unless required by law to do so. EPIC will never give, sell or lease your personal information to anyone outside of EPIC.

If you have signed up for the newsletter or opt in to receive communication about an event or events via EPIC's online event registration form, we will include you on our mailing list for our regular newsletter and invitations to pertinent events. You can opt out of this communication permanently at any time or elect to restrict the way EPIC uses your personal data.

SECURITY

EPIC is committed to ensuring that all personal information is secure. In order to prevent unauthorised access or disclosure, EPIC solely utilizes data controllers that subscribe to GDPR regulations and are housed within the EU or in European Commission recognized countries with adequate data protection.
